Subject: Opposition to Santos Narrabri Coal Seam Gas Project.
Date: Friday, 7 August 2020 5:13:39 PM

Good afternoon

With many submissions completed to date, in support of denying access to mining companies (Santos) wanting to remove gas from Narrabri and other gas fields, the facts, figures and science relating to possible pollution of the states' aquifers is well documented.

Underlying these arguments is a complete lack of trust.

Why would we trust entities such as 'Big Business' which often demonstrates an amoral stance - recent examples being our trusted banks, some large construction companies etc.? Politicians who promise the world at election time but brush aside any inconvenient commitments within a few short weeks. Scientists and economists with conflicting arguments are viewed with suspicion too.

We belong to a farming family which has contributed to producing food and fibre since 1911. Without reliable unpolluted underground water the next drought could destroy our farm's productivity along with that of many dependant on the Great Artesian Basin.

The ability to help feed not only Australian communities but those beyond our shores is clearly at risk for what may well be short term gain.

Thank you
