Dear sir,

This has been such a long drawn out process.

For myself, I think any industry is a wonderful thing in these hard times, with finances compromised with the many outpourings to keep Australia's Financial balance afloat with Covid tapping on all shoulders.

However my knowledge of this is limited other than I lived in the coal mining country area in Queensland for 4 years and other than the length of the trains moving coal it didn't seem to be a problem, if one happened to coincide with a train at the crossing, at those times one was realistic and just waited, mind you these coal moving trains sometimes took 15 minutes to pass but it was in the outback. I personally can not see a problem.

Waxing lyrical is not going to achieve anything, but I am interested, I like industry and the richness it can bring to an area which has a fast growing population and not much 'large' industry to support it. Keep the young people here with work and ambition rather than the current 'aged' population who do lots of whinging and not much else.

Yours most sincerely
Pamela Lee Drewe
