Dear Independent Planning Commission

I am responding to the additional information received in relation to the Glendell Continued Operations Project (SSD 9349) as advised on 14 June 2022. This additional information relates to the DPE response to the Commission's request for additional assessment of Aboriginal and European heritage impacts.

After reviewing the additional information, I wish to make a submission as follows:

1. The response does not appear to meet the IPC request for additional assessment of Aboriginal and European heritage.
2. It is clear that the Ravensworth Homestead and surrounds is of State heritage significance, even though the formal process of recognising this has not occurred.
3. The relative heritage significance and loss of heritage that would arise as a result of the DPI recommended consent condition being implemented is unknown.
4. The only reason for recommending relocation of Ravensworth Homestead is that if this did not occur, the project would be 'unviable'. However, this is based on changeable economic assumptions, takes into account project proponent costs only, and fails to consider the economic and social benefits of leaving the homestead in situ and the coal in the ground.
5. The assessment of heritage impacts of a proposed relocation are significant, but have not been adequately assessed.
6. In balancing short term benefit, long term gains and irreplaceable values that need to be considered in determining the development (greenhouse gas emissions, climate change and heritage values) the sensible decision would be to refuse the development.

Thank you for the opportunity to provide further comments.

Kind regards,

Martin Fallding
