Obviously Blayney council and Regis Resources are not concerned with the part of the future trauma inflicted upon the 87 households around the proposed McPhillamy Mine.

They have both shown blatant disregard for the health and wellbeing of these families in allowing this proposal to advance to it's current stage.

The Kings Plains site is totally unsuitable for a number of reasons, but surely the health and wellbeing of the people that they want to build their mine beside is the most important!

Surely the rights of the citizens of Kings Plains have been overridden by the pursuit of profit driven interests.
