I am a proud southern highlands resident who opposes this development wholeheartedly. We pride ourselves, as a community, on looking after our environment for our enjoyment and for our children's future. I am pregnant with my first child with my partner and we're about to purchase our first home in the beautiful town of Moss Vale. There has been enough development, namely Ashbourne, and the traffic is already unbearable in the area. Let alone with what would come with this unnecessary development.

The southern highland is well known for its tourism which will no doubt be impacted by this development.

We're a small town who needs to foster our businesses with tourism and the continuation of the desirability of our area, not to be the next industrial dumping site.
