As a community member of the southern highlands we regularly drive through moss vale to access work out at Robertson. The traffic congestion through moss vale is a major factor in objecting against this plan for plastics refinery. The second component is the environmental impact with the new berrima concrete works a well known local accidental polluter (ask any resident in new berrima about the concrete dust) I can only imagine the impact on moss vale with any plastic particulates that may escape. I don't think we have the infrastructure to deal with all the new homes as well as more truck traffic. The southern villages are struggling to attract tourism as it is without having a major plastic refinery on the doorstep. I think our southern highlands should focus on tourism, local produce, our beautiful national parks, perhaps invest in some more healthy revenue raising projects such as a mountain bike park, or another community lead project that helps to encourage families to stay in the southern highlands. Not more polluters. Less industry in our highlands.
