To whom it may concern :

A new library at Scots College sounds as though it should be a non-issue. However, a huge expensive building that will inevitably house more rooms than just a library and lead to increasing numbers of students (when there already is an excess of enrolments) should not be permitted until Scots College addresses the very serious issue of traffic regulation and safety.

If there is to be approval for this, it must be tied to traffic safety for their students and anyone else in the vicinity. We dread what it will take for this very serious issue to be addressed by Scots College.

Yours sincerely,

Jennifer Ceylon
