I Believe this project should go ahead --It is an admirable use of the remediated lands that are not suitable for much due to the inability to hold water as it was before mining and long term settling which has minimal effect to light weight solar infrastructure

I believe it should be warmly welcome that Idemitsu wishes to invest in the long term (a bit of payback if you like) and it shows that it a desirable thing when a company that respected thinks it is a viable prospect

Muswellbrook has a workforce high in people with an association in and around Electrical infrastructure

I believe this to be extremely positive on balance for this area
