The British & Irish Lions are one win away from a historic series sweep as they head into the Second Test against Australia on Saturday at the Melbourne Cricket Ground.

With a professional tour record of 6–0 over Australian sides, the Lions now aim to secure a 3–0 series whitewash on Australian soil for the first time since 1974.

Following a commanding 27–19 victory in Brisbane, the Lions lead the series 1–0 and are poised to close it out early. But former captain Martin Johnson warns against complacency, recalling how previous tours fell apart after promising starts.

The British and Irish Lions return to action in their second of three Tests against Australia on Saturday.

The stage is set at the Melbourne Cricket Ground as Australia look to draw level in the series after falling short in Brisbane last week.

The Lions remain unbeaten on this tour, and will look to preserve that record in Melbourne on Saturday. A win would see them clinch the series with a match to spare.

Andy Farrell has shuffled his starting lineup after beating Pasifika XV on Tuesday. Garry Ringrose had been tipped to start, but withdrew from the team at the last minute after experiencing concussion symptoms in training - he is replaced by Huw Jones.

Bundee Aki has also stepped in to the squad as Sione Tuipulotu struggles with a tight hamstring.
